Three PRO TIPS to scoring a job

Have you noticed that life can get kind of pricey? Your allowance might cover hanging out with your friends, but what about bigger costs like a new computer or college?

Cue the part-time job... Yes, when it comes to earning extra cash, working is your best bet. So how do you find a job? CHECK IT OUT:

1 Spread the word... you're looking

Social media is a simple way to let everyone know you're looking for work. But follow up by telling your friends and neighbors in person, too. It may seem like a long shot, but you never know who's looking to hire, or who knows someone in need of an employee.

2 Introduce yourself... in person

The Internet is a good place to start your job search, but also check out smaller, local businesses that may not post their job vacancy online.

See a Help Wanted sign? Introduce yourself to the manager, if possible. A little face time may go a long way.

3 Tap your inner entrepreneur

If your job hunt comes up short, start your own business. Do you have a particular skill that might be useful to people?

Even if you're not inspired to be the next Mark Zuckerberg, you can always see if your parents or neighbors need extra work done around the house or in the yard.

Interview like a boss: how to impress an employer

Before you land your new job, you'll need to ace the interview. Don't stress—we have tips to help you prepare.

Think about your threads

First appearances matter. For your interview attire, find the sweet spot between “typical school day” and “prom.”

Plan on punctual

Try to arrive about ten minutes early. Punctuality shows that you respect deadlines.

Prepare talking points

You might be asked about your experience, hobbies and plans for the future. Practice your answers ahead of time.

HOBBIES THAT PAY

Wouldn't it be great if you could get paid to do what you love?... It might be possible! Check out these hobbies and see how they can translate to income.
